by Craig Pospisil

December 29-31*, 2011

Northville- a comedy of the interwoven lives of 10 people throughout the course of one year. Beginning on New Year's Eve, the story follows happiness and heartbreak as it shifts among the group. Join our TPT actors as they bring each scene to life, while binding all twelve months into a wonderful performance.

The story centers around Phoebe (Angela Kay Miller) and Ben (James R. Kuhl), who are engaged to be married. But Phoebe worries that her Beatles-obsessed fiancé may not be the right man for her, and Ben is no help planning the wedding, because he's distracted by a friend's illness. Her friend, Elaine (Sonja Marquis), is jealous of Phoebe's relationship, especially since none of hers last more than five dates. She's ready to give up on love until she meets the eternally optimistic Walter (Taras Los), whose only flaw may be that he's married. Walter's gruff brother, Nick (Rob Pantano), is single, but when he proposes to Paige (Julia Garlotte) on a beach, her answer is to scream and drop the engagement ring in the sand. Heidi (Katie Terpstra), Phoebe's sister, delivers a comic gem of a commencement address in May that starts as a tribute to the graduates' parents, but degenerates into a hysterical tirade against them.

Come June, Phoebe's wedding day meltdown isn't helped by her mother Gwen's (Julia Glander) complaints, or her father, Chris (Thomas D. Mahard), who (while trying to calm her fears) tells Phoebe to "pretend you're in an airplane that's crashing...". Walter and Nick and their friend Tony (Peter Prouty) battle hilariously in July over what they find sexy about women (but it's not what you think). The diverse scenes and characters in this winning play come together to create a delightful theatrical experience, encompassing a range of emotions from happiness to sorrow and everything in between.
